ABOUT US

An Inspirational Approach To Traditional Crochet Patterns.

Ruby Grace is the experienced crocheter, self professed junkie of the OG Granny blanket, color inspiration pins on Pinterest and yarn. Recognizing other experienced crocheters may not need a teaching source, just the details to inspire and motivate, Ruby Grace was born.

Our goal is to inspire, inform and motivate crocheters with everything they need to make beautiful handmade blankets using common crochet stitches. You know the stitches, but you need the details because you've been inspired to rummage that yarn stash. Brand, color way, hook size, skein quantities, plus more, we got you. Don't worry, we know even the best of us need a little "how to" help, so we have a companion video for every pattern!

Gauge Info

WHAT IS GAUGE?

Gauge is the number of stitches and rows in each inch. Gauge swatches are generally 4"x 4", unless you're working in rounds. We, at Ruby Grace strongly recommend you work a bigger swatch for a more accurate stitch count. This keeps you away from starting chains, and sides where the gauge can become skewed.

IS GAUGE IMPORTANT?

It's up for debate on whether you should and how accurate it really needs to be. We say yes to both! In fact our stitch gauges can get pretty technical. Especially with garments! It's not just hook sizes that matter either. Even the same category weight yarns can have different gauges.

Here's we look at on the Waffle Stitch:

#1

When looking at a single stitch we look at the actual height. The stitch is measured from the actual top of the stitch to the actual bottom. Even if it goes part way into the rows above and below.

#2

To counts the width of the row you are counting the actual width of each stitch. Start at the edge of the actual stitch. Don't forget the "back posts" (posts from the back side that ha been worked as a front post) are included in the total measurement as stitches.

#3

An easy way to count how many rows is to count the actual posts

WHAT'S IN AN INCH?

Take your total rounds in 4" and divide it by 4. This will give you the amount of rounds per inch.
